PMA Workers on Strike

On Saturday, October 1, UNITE HERE members picketed alongside striking Philadelphia Museum of Art workers. Two weeks later, after 19 days on strike, the PMA union won a historic first contract with paid parental leave, wage increases, and more affordable healthcare.

Big Win for Aramark Club Box Servers and Runners

After Aramark announced that it was eliminating the Club Box Server position and threatening the jobs of over 20 Union members, Club Box Servers fought back to save their jobs – and won! They reached an agreement that creates a new classification, Club Attendants, which keeps everybody's seniority and lifts the pay from under $9 per hour to $14.75 per hour. They also doubled the delivery charge and won $1 per order as well as suggested gratuities of 18%, 20%, and 25% on Club-Level mobile orders. Former Club Box Servers and Runners will also have first preference on new Club Level Bartender openings. In 60 days, Aramark and the Union can revisit the agreement and recommend changes.

Solidarity with Unionizing Home Depot Workers in Philly!

Workers at a Home Depot in Northeast Philly filed for union election last month after months of organizing underground. While the home improvement giant has brought in record profit since the start of the pandemic in 2020, workers there still make poverty wages and deal with extreme understaffing.

March for a Fair Contract at Sodexo in NYC

Local 274 members marched in solidarity with our union siblings from New York in a demonstration outside the Federal Reserve Bank building in the financial district of Manhattan. Cafeteria workers at the Fed building are fighting for a new contract as part of a nationwide (?) fight against Sodexo, one of the largest food service corporations in the world.
